Fly Control With No Meat or Milk Withdrawal

Cobb Shipping has a number of products containing Altosid or Clarifly available. Both of these products require no withdrawal period for meat or milk. Flies are not only an annoying pest for cattle but they reduce profits by reducing weight gain, spreading mastitis, pink eye, and other diseases, and reducing breeding efficiency.

We stock Altosid in three liquid feed formulas including Prime 32 Bovatec, Dry Cow 30, and Precision 30. In addition, we stock Westway Sweetcake Mineral tubs. Altosid is designed to control Horn Flies on pasture cattle. Altosid not only requires no withdrawal of meat or milk but also presents no threat to other livestock or even fish.

Clarifly is available to custom mix in liquid products designed for the TMR. These products include sugar blends, feedlot suspensions, and other TMR liquids. Clarifly will control House, Stable, Horn, and Face Flies. With current milk prices being very attractive, it would be a shame to suffer a milk production recall due to flies annoying the cattle, spreading mastitis, and reducing weight gains in growing cattle.

The mode of action for Altosid and Clarifly is to kill fly larvae in the manure. Other flying breeding areas such as spoiled feed should be cleaned up to further reduce the total fly population.

Having no withdrawal for meat or milk means you can have worry free fly control. No need to be concerned about any levels in milk or meat. The public wants wholesome food and using Altosid and Clarifly will provide that.
